The Littlest Angel (Multicultural Book Series 22) Charles Tazewell

New illustrations and designed for little ones in all countries. The timeless Christmas classic of an irrepressible angel who struggles to adapt to his new heavenly home, while disrupting one and all by swinging on the golden gates and singing out of tune in the heavenly choir! After his wish is granted, the Littlest Angel learns to live happily in heaven, but is his gift for the Christ child the right one? This title features American spelling.

Recommended for children age 4 to 8.

About the Author

Charles Tazewell was born in Iowa in 1900 and lived into his early seventies. During his lifetime, he enjoyed the success and recognition that his story "The Littlest Angel" brought him, witnessing numerous book printings over the years.

The Littlest Angel began as a script for a radio show in 1939 but was not broadcast until a few years later. First published in book form with original illustrations in 1946, The Littlest Angel was also published three years later by Coronet magazine. Loved by children for more than half a century, Charles Tazewell's story has been illustrated, animated and performed numerous times since its first appearance.
