Volume 5 of The Decapolis Codes Bible places the apocryphal letters of the Apostles' generation within the fold of the original New Testament letters, to form a close approximate of the original Biblical canon that was suppressed by the Romans, after the relative support the Bible received between AD 80 until AD 100.

In particular, Clement (the next appointed leader of the church after Jesus and the Apostle Peter) corresponds with Peter, then James and the church.

...Clement was a relative of the new Caesar's family that reigned for a few decades after the Apostles were martyred, in the time of support for the Church from about AD 80-100.

...Only the most authentic of the early apocryphal letters are included, with insightful notes about the scenes and scenarios of each of the letters of the New Testament church. More writings from the Church archives are included in the next volumes!
