Le Poeme De L'Angle Droit " Lithographies Originales [Hardcover] French Edition (Editions Connivences) Le Corbusier

Between 1947 and 1953, Le Corbusier (1887-1965) produced a series of lithographs and poems that can be regarded as an artistic realization of his worldview. The works have been arranged in such a way that seven rows, one upon the other, result in a picture wall, an iconostasis. Each row is dedicated to a specific topic, ranging from the environment and mental and physical elements to the right angle, with which human beings establish their own order. The publication presents a meticulously reproduced facsimile of the original lithographs and the poème from 1955. An appendix includes a translation into English. The book has been published since and elsewhere but this is the 1989 French printing by Foundation Le Corbusier. There is a statement at the rear of the book in French that explains: "This book is fully composed by le Corbusier including lithographs in color and black and white, originally published on September 9, 1955 by Mourlot Brothers . . ."
